

these types of projects. However, the time frame for when the Environmental Impact Review Committee will complete the process is completely in their hands, as there are a number of other departments, both provincial and federal that is consulted in this process. It would not be uncommon for this process to take six to eight months.

Clerk/Treasurer, Cormier noted that copies of the questions and responses will be submitted to Council once completed and once they are submitted to the Environmental Impact Review Committee, they will be posted on the Belledune website. As well the province posts them as well on the provincial website as part of the Environmental Impact Review.
